

cleanup

PRESS RELEASE

Tulsa's parks are a staple in our community. Help us cleanup Tulsa Centennial Park and keep our land beautiful.

Help Cleanup Tulsa Centennial Park on August 31, 2008

The City is busy and we understand, help us do our part by cleaning the park.

You don't have to be trying to get off the hook from a traffic violation, impress your teachers, or be bored to help out around the community.

Tulsa Centennial Park at Sixth and Peoria is one of Tulsa's most beautiful locations to kick back and read a book, or walk the near quarter mile walking trail.

However, it has quite a bit of trash adding up in the edges of the pond(s) and water features on its large acreage.

To help with the issue, ThisTulsa.com has decided to get together with volunteers and organizations including TulsaMET (Metropolitan Environment Trust) and Tulsa Town hall, LLC (tulsatownhall.com) to clean the park up.

EXCERPT FROM THISTULSA.COM >

If this is not your cup of tea, hey we don't hate you! But if you're down for helping our city stay beautiful and need something to do with your Sunday time, hit us up!

If you have gloves, a net from your pool, extra gloves, gloves, more gloves, and garbage liners – bring em! We'll likely need just about anything you can think of to make this happen. If you have waders those pants made of rubber to walk into water.. might bring those too!

The time and date hopefully will not be an issue; The Gathering is located at 6th and Madison, so if you want to attend a late service on Sunday, they're available for worship. If not, stick around and I'm sure we'll all be hanging out doing something nearby!

ThisTulsa.com will bring bottles of water and will provide RedBull™ for everyone – in moderation (No killing six in less than a minute Justin..)

Hosted by ThisTulsa.com

 2008

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

If you would like more information about this event, topic, or to schedule an interview with Justin Shattuck of ThisTulsa.com and its contributors, please contact him via email justin@thistulsa.com.

Photograph courtesy Justin Shattuck